ESTABLISHED JUNE 1907 — AN INDEPENDENT COUNTY NEWSPAPER

JEFFERSONTOWN, KY., FRIDAY, MARCH 28, 1952

44 YEARS
OF SERVICE TO
JEFFERSON COUNTY
Every Friday at $2.50 Per Year

Increased First-Grade Enrollment Expected In City-County Schools

An increase of approximately 1,400 in enrollment in first grades of Louisville and Jefferson County schools is expected next month because of a change in a state law.

The new statute, passed by the recent session of the General Assembly, permits children who will be 6 by December 30 to enter the first grade in September. Formerly the age deadline was 30 days after opening of the school term.

James L. Sublett, director of instruction for Jefferson County Schools, predicted an increase of over this term 1,400, while Omer Carmichael, superintendent of city schools, anticipated an increase of 1,000 over the 1951-1952 figure of 3,600.

It was said that some teachers will be required to handle the increase in city schools and at least 13 in the county. Additional classroom facilities also will have to be provided and some crowding is anticipated, it was said.

Meanwhile, the county school system has added a seventh grade at Greathouse School. Math teachers, effective next year, to relieve over-crowding at Eastern High School, Middletown. The 11th graders at Greathouse will remain there next term as seventh-graders instead of going to Eastern.

A similar plan is being considered for the Jefferson County school. Sublett said. There are 56 six-graders at the latter school now.

Both institutions now have only six graders at present. Year after next, according to present plans, pupils of both schools will be transferred to the seventh grade will go to Eastern as eighth-graders.

Large Labor Supply Available In State

Kentucky is equipped to supply workers for a considerable expansion of manufacturing activity, P. Jones, director of the Employment Service Division of the Department of Economic Security, reported at Frankfort.

Jones estimated there is a current potential labor supply of 167,000 unused or underemployed workers for industrial jobs in the State, including 74,000 men and 93,000 women. He said potential supply of labor is relatively large in low income areas than in more affluent sections.

He added that large supplies of labor could be recruited by mining areas due to economic illness of the industry and low income status of the non-mining work force.

April Designated To Be Period For Cancer Control

At least one-half of the 3,062 Kentuckians who died last year of cancer would be alive today with early detection and prompt treatment, according to Dr. Robert Hansen, director of the Division of Preventive Medical Services, Kentucky State Department of Health.

Dr. Hansen, in a statement urging public support of Cancer Control Month in April, said that the high cancer death rate could be greatly lowered with public knowledge of the seven danger signs of cancer and prompt treatment. The purpose of Cancer Control Month is to raise funds for cancer education, for research and for service to cancer patients.

Because pain is seldom an early symptom of cancer, it is important for everyone to know the following danger signals, Dr. Hansen points out:

1. Any lump or thickening, especially in the breast, lips or tongue or about the neck, armpit or groin.

2. Any irregular bleeding or discharge.

3. Any change in the color or size of a mole, wart or birthmark.

4. A sore that does not heal normally, particularly about the tongue, mouth or lips.

5. Persistent hoarseness, unexplained cough, or difficulty in swallowing which lasts more than two weeks, or blood in the sputum.

Unexplained indigestion or uneasiness after eating or drinking, particularly after the age of 40.

7. Alternate periods of constipation or diarrhea when there is no change in diet to account for it or rectal bleeding.

Anyone experiencing any of these symptoms should see a physician or contact his local health department without delay, Dr. Hansen added.

Administration Forces Rode Saddle During Most of 1952 Legislature

By Tom Smith

Kentucky's 1952 General Assembly held a middle of the road course on political philosophy with business and agricultural influence making itself felt throughout the session.

Notable during the General Assembly session ended last week was that there were no measures approved which were seriously opposed by either business or agriculture.

Among those beaten measures was the Stovall Labor Bill which took a sound defeat in the House of Representatives. Subsequent labor-endorsed bills which were passed were considered innocuous or were agreed measures worked out in labor-management conferences.

Educators considered approval of a constitutional amendment by the legislature the first step toward vast improvement in the state's school system. The measure provided the state commonwealth would revise the method of distributing the state common school fund to the school districts.

Hard fought by the school people was a measure which set December 31 as the birthdate deadline for school entry for six-year old children. Under a 1890 law, a child could not enter school if his sixth birthday occurred after September 1. The new law allows the six-year old child to start school in September if his birthday is before December 31.

Another approved constitutional amendment which will be submitted to the people for vote in November would create an appointive gubernatorial cabinet. It changes from elective to appointive the offices of state treasurer, director of the State Department of Public Instruction, clerk of the court of appeals and commissions.

Some school people fear that this "short ballot" measure may hurt the state's education amendment in the November election.

Much of the legislation voted in the final session was of the "house keeping" variety and won quick approval. These were usually to change the method of maintaining state functions and to grant pay increases for employees in keeping with living cost increases. Sheriffs came in for some pay boosts in three measures approved by the House on Tuesday.

Of major import was the re-districting bill cutting the State's 105 legislative districts to 88. There was a strong protest to passage of the measure as proposed by the Wetherby administration.

The administration held control of both Houses throughout the session. Governor Wetherby, the "strapping midget" was killed in the Senate Rules Committee.

Gov. Wetherby requested the legislative chambers more than any Kentucky governor has requested in the past. He had the effect of strengthening the leadership of both Houses.

The wet-dry issue never comes to a head after the session. On the part of some drys to inject the issue into a bill to allow the sale of alcoholic beverages at race tracks.

This bill was to correct an oversight in a previous measure calling for revocation of liquor licenses of places where gambling is found.

ENGINEERED FOR SIMPLICITY

Farm and Ranch presents an unusually attractive, spacious three-bedroom house, Plan No.
5032 which you can build for the cost of most two-bedroom houses.
How is this possible? To begin with, the rooms are arranged in a simple rectangle. The width of the house is such that light
and air can be obtained in every room. The house can be erected at a minimum cost. There are no excess corners or offsets
in the foundation or roof, plan.
All this will greatly facilitate the framing, and will permit the use of materials with a minimum of waste. Other new methods of construction are provided in the plans that will make a great saving in both materials and labor.

The three bedrooms are of good size, and have plenty of closet space for ordinary family use.
The windows have been located to permit attractive furniture arrangement. All the counter and cabinet space in the kitchen is a boon to the housewife. A convenient feature is the broom and mop closet. The large closet in the bedroom will be ideal as a "catch all."

If a water heater is used in conjunction with the range, we suggest that the range be moved slightly farther from the chimney.

If you do not want this arrangement, the heater may be placed in the workroom.

If you desire a basement, we suggest that you rearrange the workroom and provide an entrance from that area. However, the workroom may serve for many of the functions normally handled in the basement. The kitchen will take care of both the kitchen range and the living room heater.

This house has a very attractive exterior, achieved by the proper selection of large windows and louvered shutters on the front. The 12-inch boards which frame the colonial door, and the small wrought-iron rail give an unusual charm to the front entrance.

You can obtain blueprints for this, The Jeffersonian Farm and Ranch House Plan No. 5032 and a handy list of materials from which you can figure your cost of construction cost accurately. Send $1 to Building Editor, Farm and Ranch Southern Agriculturalist,
Dept. 5-64, Nashville, Tenn.
Order by number—Plan No. 5032.
Blueprints are adequate for any firm carpenter or for any farmer
handy with tools.

which is undermining the economic and social foundations of the nation, while at one and the same time increasing taxes on the private enterprises themselves and on the general public. Where Government competes with private enterprise at a loss, All of the People are forced to pay a share of that loss. While Only Those Who Purchase Or Utilize such governmentally-produced goods and services actually obtain any benefit. This is unconstitutional—it abridges the right of the people to make their own choice as to what they shall purchase. It forces many people to pay through taxation for things that they themselves either cannot use, or would prefer to purchase elsewhere.

Many Reasons
History reveals that there are many reasons why it is impossible for a government to carry on a business, as effectively and economically as it can be done by a privately-operated company. The principal of these reasons is that when Government would operate a business, it is forced to set up a bureaucracy. This bureaucracy, in spite of the efforts of those in government who may have executive ability, inevitably becomes involved in a maze of red tape that makes for delay, waste and extra expense.

Perhaps the most serious consequence that usually follows governmental competition with private enterprise is the fact that Government agencies so engaged are not required to pay the same manner and at the same rate as is demanded of private enterprise organizations. This is a most disturbing influence, making unfair competition, and very often seriously affecting the income of states, municipalities and local governments.

Bad Business
All the evidence would seem to prove that Government in business is bad business—bad business for all concerned—not only for the private enterprises with which it unfairly competes, but for the taxpayers and for the state or community in which it operates. A halt must be called to further encroachment of Government into the affairs which the citizenry has proved rightfully belong to private endeavor. Further, Government must be made to remove its paralyzing hands from numerous undertakings already usurped.

One of the most important duties of Congress should be to stop the expansion of Federal Government into the field now served so well by private enterprises. Its next most important duty should be to eliminate those agencies, bureaus, departments, commissions and other Governmental activities which compete with, infringe upon or interfere with private enterprise. Make sure that the Congress and U. S. Senators, whether they be Democrat or Republican, for whom you vote next November 4th are definitely committed to a policy of having the Government keep its devastating clutches private enterprise. That is the sure way to stop the forward march of socialism in free America. Make no mistake, government in business is socialism, in addition to being BAD BUSINESS.

Promoting Ham And Eggs Made Man A Fortune

NEW YORK, N.Y.—By glorifying ham-and-eggs, Maitel has made a fortune. He is known as the "showman of food."

Ten years ago when a radio salesman, worried that shortages would put him out of work. He went into a Broadway restaurant and ordered ham and eggs.

"By the time they got to me they were cold," he said. "That had happened to me a lot of times. I got to wondering why. I went back and experimented in my own kitchen. I found that if I served them in the skillet they were cooked in they stayed hot."

One-Dish Specialty
With $900 he had saved and $3,200 he borrowed, Maitel opened a restaurant on Broadway. He specialized in ham and eggs served in short handled, skillets hot from the fire. The only other things he served were coffee and deep dish pie.

"If I had known more about the restaurant business I wouldn't have dared the gamble," Maitel recalled. "Everyone then figured only a hamburger stand could get by with only one real item on the menu."

But the Broadwayers came in droves. These sophisticated liked the homey touch of eating out of a skillet.

Maitel has six restaurants in mid-Manhattan, grosses $4,000,000 a year, plans a national chain. He has now expanded his menu to include other standard dishes such as steak, potatoes and onions.

"A restaurant needs a theme," he says. "The town was overrun with Italian, French and Chinese restaurants. None seemed to be taking a pride in its American food. That's why I concentrated on it."

Made Money Fast
Maitel made money too fast. It began to bother him. He was proud of his financial success—he still is—but he felt that a growing bank account didn't justify a man's being alive.

One day a garage attendant told him of a brother who was in prison and eligible for parole—"if he only had a job."

Maitel arranged for a job, got the man freed. The incident got him interested in prison welfare, and it has become another career with him. He has helped find jobs for

Some 50 convicts after freeing them.

"I don't touch habitual criminals," he said. "But I do want to help neglected men who have made one mistake, paid for it, and deserve a second chance. And no one I've helped has ever betrayed my trust."

Artifacts Present Clues To Venezuelan Culture

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Black and white photographs of the last great hoard of the crossroads of America's ancient civilization, in Venezuela. The significant part of this hoard played before while men first came to the New World is revealed from study of over 2,000 artifacts, stone tools, and fragments of pottery by Col. Berkeley R. Lewis. The specimens were gathered while Col. Lewis was a member of a military mission in Venezuela. They represent several culture periods: some contemporaneous with the crest of the Inca civilization in Peru and the high Maya cultures of Yucatan; others earlier. Various of the Venezuelan cultures were thought, while explorers first arrived.

The Lewis collection, which includes artifacts from sites along the Orinoco, the Venezuelan North Coast, the shores of Lake Valencia, and the Andean regions of Trujillo and Lara, as well as many other sites, shows that throughout Venezuela many different prehistoric groups thrived. In much dry, uncultivated land, large amounts of pottery have been found suggesting aboriginal village sites of some size, whose people made a living by irrigation agriculture.

America Building Better Quality Fighting Tanks

NEW YORK—America is moving fast to improve the quality and quantity of its fighting tanks. The Army's newest medium tank, an improved Patton which has been called "the finest medium tank in the world" by General J. Lawton Collins, Chief of Staff, has begun rolling off the assembly line at the Detroit Arsenal of the Ordnance Tank-Automotive Center.

Soon to be in full-scale production is a new light tank, weighing about 28 tons, that has 76-mm gun and a speed of better than 30 miles an hour. And at Newark, Delaware, a great new plant is being rushed toward completion to build the new heavy T-43, a super-dreadnought with a 120-mm gun, that promises to be superior to the 56-ton Joseph Stalin III, one of the most formidable tanks ever made in mass quantities.

So far as quantity goes, President Truman's goal of a production capacity of 35,000 tanks a year, at first thought of as something to shoot at but not to expect, will be met within the next 12 months and can be tripled if the need arises.

Handling Children Special Problem for Dentists Only

CHICAGO — A recommendation that parents should stay out of their children's operating room while their children are receiving dental treatment has been made in The Journal of the American Dental Association.

Dr. Frank L. Lamons, chairman of the department of orthodontics at Emory University School of Dentistry, and Dr. Mary Lynn Morgan, both of Atlanta, Ga., said parents should be informed fully about the conditions of their children's mouths and the treatment needed. But they added:

"Departure of the parents from the room during action brings miraculous results in every instance of behavior difficulty. Although there is no apparent behavior problem, the child's relationship with the dentist and the parent will be a happier one."

In the opinion of the Atlanta dentists, if a child is impatient or resentful, the behavior problems should be settled between the dentist and the child.

His Goldangest Funeral To Be Second 'Burial'

BURLINGTON, Colo.—A 68-piece band from Cleveland is going to attend the funeral of Jim Gerhart, 78, a retired farmer. It will be his second funeral.

Jim, who spent an estimated $15,000 last year's "funeral" services, said he had received word from the drum major of a Cleveland band fly here for the second in the series of services. He did not disclose the identity of the drum major nor the band.

Costly Event
"I aim to see I ain't buried like a dog," he told reporters in announcing last year's event. He said also that the wanted to spend as much of his $75,000 fortune before he dies as is possible—"to make sure them dern relatives of mine don't get my money."

A few weeks ago Jim announced plans for the second "funeral." He said at first, it would not be "near as big a blowout as it was last time." But the probable presence of the band has changed his mind about the scope of this year's event.

"I'll probably be the goldangest funeral June 1 you ever saw." Problems already are plaguing him. He originally had planned the funeral for June 1, but it was postponed because of the weather.

Some Preacher
The army, where last year's services were held, won't be available for June 1, and the promise is just when I needed it. The army is under repair.

At least one item has been settled. The Rev. S. H. Mahaffey of Konrad, Kans., who Jim says, received a $100 fee and the promise of an $8,000 inheritance last year, has agreed to do the preaching again.

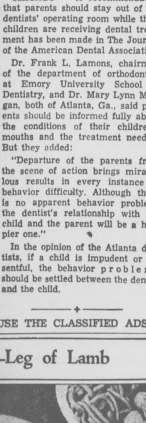

Jet and Rocket Propulsion Stairway to the Stars?

NEW YORK—The invention of workable reaction motors for jet and rocket propulsion awaited the 20th century. Though based on the same law, the two methods of movement differ importantly. In jet propulsion air is taken from the atmosphere, compressed, mixed and burned with gas, then ejected with great force at the rear.

The power plant of the modern rocket, on the other hand, carries its own oxygen—in turn mixed and burned with gas, then thrust out as with the jet. Theoretically such a mechanism should be able, at some future stage of development, to operate beyond the earth's atmosphere. By 1931 scientific reasoning showed the subject's tendency to support the conclusions of Robert H. Goddard, whose modestly titled paper, "Method of Reaching Extreme Altitudes," sought to establish the possibility of space-travel in man-controlled rockets.

Little more than two decades later, the Nazis' giant V-2 rockets landed Goddard's dream. The stars into an arch of hell for the beleaguered people of Britain. Meanwhile, the first successful jet plane was perfected by the young British inventor, Frank Whittle, and flown in May, 1941. Jet aircraft have since been breaking speed and flight records with monotonous regularity.

Peanuts for the elephants—
peanut butter for the family.
Peanut butter takes a new role of increased importance as it joins the list of plentiful foods reasonably priced. A peanut butter sandwich is probably as American as the hot dog... it's good at lunch or after school,

and peanut butter teams well
with other foods, both food value and flavor-lift.

Peanut butter food value must be respected, for this rich flavored food provides a fairly good source of protein (1 tablespoon gives about 2/3 the amount of protein as one egg), the B vitamins, carbohydrates, and fat. The calorie-count is 97 calories for 1
level tablespoon, that's concentrated energy value.

Peanut butter choices on your grocery shelves are many—there are different kinds according to grind and mixing process used.
When it comes to peanut butter
texture, you may choose fine, medium, or coarse. Perhaps you're one who likes the coarse grind for cookies and sauces because of the more chewy, crunchy
texture and prefer the smoother blends for sandwiches and salad dressings.

Know what price you pay—
it's easy to check the price for the container, but read the label to get weight and mixing method. Homogenized oil is added to some peanut butters to prevent the separation of the oil. If oil should come to the top, mix with a knife. Turning the jar upside down on the storage shelf
will help prevent too much separation.

For easy spreading, store peanut butter at room temperature, but cool, covered, and dry. Peanut butter is perishable for the oil becomes rancid so do not depend on it keeping for an indefinite time. Buy the size container best suited to your uses and size of your family.

To use peanut butter—add peanut butter to sauces for vegetables, to quick breads and doughs, and mix peanut butter with other foods for special sandwich fillings. Since butter is more plentiful than is usual

at this time of year, try this combination: 1/4 cup peanut butter,
1/4 cup chopped pitted dates, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1/2 cup cooked salad dressing. For another sandwich filling mix with 1/2 cup peanut butter 1/3 cup pickle relish, 2 tablespoons salad dressing. For a vegetable sandwich filling use 1/2 cup peanut butter, 1/2 cup chopped celery
leaves, 1/2 cup grated carrots,
2 tablespoons French dressing, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

To make peanut butter muffins,
follow this recipe from the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics: 2 cups sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup peanut butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons melted fat.
Sift dry ingredients together.
Work in peanut butter. Combine beaten egg and milk and pour into dry ingredients all at once.
Add fat and stir just enough to moisten dry ingredients. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in a hot oven 40 degrees F. for about 25 minutes. Makes 12 large muffins.

For more uses for peanut butter and peanuts, write to 437 Federal Building Louisville for a free copy of U.S.D.A. leaflet—"Peanut
and Peanut Butter Recipes."

Chicken Contest Is Nearing End

The chicken guessing contest which is attracting considerable attention in this area is rapidly drawing to a close, though entries are still being accepted. The contest, which is in progress at Feeders Supply Store, 314 Baxter Avenue, is based on the growth rate of a number of chickens on display.

Charlie Keen reminded contestants Thursday that they have only a short time in which to revise their guesses. If they wish to do so.

"I have never seen as much interest as is being shown in this contest," he said. "I think one reason is that everyone feels there is a better chance to win because contestants know they aren't competing with thousands of others.
Only people in this area are entering, and the prizes will go to local people. There is still time to enter, but I advise fast action, because the end of the contest is in sight."

Start Those Chicks Now

It is still not too late to start chicks, to have layers that will be in production during September to December when average egg prices are the highest. The improvement in the feed-egg ratio, the reduction in chicks hatched and the heavy culling of old hens make the outlook good for the efficient producer.

If the egg producer is to realize maximum profits, he must not only have the "how-to" of production, he must put this "know-how" into operation. The grower should pay attention to:
1. Purchase good chicks. If chicks are to live, grow and produce profitably, they must be healthy and from high-producing breeding stock.

2. Buy only the number of chicks the equipment will handle.
Avoid over-crowding by allowing one square foot of floor space per chick from the start and do not place more than 300 chicks in any one unit.

3. Provide enough feeder space.
Each chick needs one inch of feeder space at the beginning.
This should be increased to two inches per chick at 3 weeks and three inches per chick at 6 weeks.

4. Have an ample water supply.
At the start, provide one 1-gallon fountain for each 100 chicks.
After the birds are six weeks old,
two 3-gallon fountains per 100
birds are needed.

5. Use a thermometer to check the brooder temperature. Start the brooder stove before the chicks come and have it regulated to 90 degrees when the chicks arrive. Reduce the temperature 5 degrees per week until the brooder temperature is down to 60 degrees at 6 weeks.

6. Follow a careful sanitation program. Thoroughly clean and disinfect the brooder house before the chicks arrive. Guard against the spread of cold and common disease germs through the drinking water by using a good water disinfectant.

7. Stir the litter daily and keep it dry.

8. Keep a good mash constantly before the birds.

Chicks To Be Given Away At Feed Store

This Saturday will be "Free Chick Day" in Louisville when the Checkboard Feed Store, 315
Baxter Avenue, will give 15-day-old cockerels to each of the first 150 adults to enter the store after the regular opening at 7:30 a.m. All other adults will be registered for future delivery of chicks.

According to Walt Montgomery
manager of the store, the chicks will be given away as part of a ration-wide program to encourage more "cocklet chicken flocks."

"A lot of folks would like to raise a few chickens for home consumption; it's easy to raise a healthy flock, following the program we have," Montgomery
said.

"We are asking all those coming in for free chicks to bring a box or container for the birds,"
he added.

Because of the limited number of birds to be given away, free of charge, it will be a case of "first come, first served," he said.

DR. B. JONES

ROB. JONES UNIVERSITY GREENVILLE, SOUTH CAROLINA

Man's greatness is to be measured not in his capacities for destruction, but in his powers of construction. It is easy to destroy, but difficult to build. A simpleton can pull down, but it takes a man of skill to build up. A child can strike a match and start a conflagration that will destroy a city, but to build a city takes the skill of architects and engineers of artisans and workmen.

A man builds a good reputation through years of right living, of honest dealing, and reliability. It is possible for some foolish or foolish person to start on idle run which will tear down the good on which it has taken so many years for a man to build up. Human body comes to full maturity through years of growth, the exercise and food, through labor and walking, yet one little corn in a few hours wipe out the

Fertilized Soils Drink Hard Rains

Unfertilized soils break down under hard rains. In doing rains? Or do those rains break down the surface soil, seal the top like a lid, puddle and then run off?

The answer depends on soil care, says Missouri University agronomists.

The accompanying photos show what happened after a beating rain fell on two freshly plowed fields adjoining each other at the Barbers Department Field at Columbia, Mo.

Both fields had been in corn since 1988. The top field was fertilized; the lower one not. For the test, all crops were removed and then the soil was plowed.

Soil in the top field took the rain in stride. The water drained quickly down. There was practically no soil damage, or loss of water or topsoil. The plowed clods are intact and the surface looks crisp and good. On the lower field, the beating rain broke the bare surface soil into particles. Clods were dissolved.

The tiny particles quickly filled the pores of the surface soils, forming a hard, lid-like crust. Water could not get down, so it ponded on the surface. This field suffered a double loss. It lost needed moisture for crops and lost its best valuable topsoil due to runoff.

Farm Wife May Equal Spouse in Crop Know-How

The hand that rocks the cradle is regarded as traditional skill in agriculture.

Prof. Grant B. Snyder, head of the Department of Olericulture at the University of Massachusetts and rural youth leader, predicts that modern farm wives will soon be growing out of the kitchen into full working partnership with husbands.

He bases his opinion, he said, on records of the National Junior Vegetable Growers Association, an organization that offers rural youth in 46 states "apprenticeship" training in the best methods of commercial gardening. This training program is a year-long production-marketing course sponsored by A&P stores, which provides $6,000 annually in scholarship funds.

In the 1951 contest, Prof. Snyder pointed out, "more than 40 per cent of the 148 winners who split the $6,000 money were girls."

"Many of these future farm wives," he added, "are college students taking agriculture, and I am sure they will put their education and their NVGA experience to good use on their future farms."

Prof. Snyder, co-founder and chief adult adviser of NVGA, said the 1952 contest, which is open to boys and girls 12 to 21 years of age, "is expected to be the biggest in NVGA history."

Windows

Large windows of double-pane insulating glass, admit an abundance of sunshine and daylight into the poultry house. Pictured above is the poultry house on the Henry Zimmels farm near Painesville, Ill. Agricultural engineers say this design helps to reduce moisture and sanitation problems.

Minnesota Farm Receipts, Expenses Hit New Highs

Both cash receipts and expenses of Minnesota farmers reached new high marks in 1951. Receipts from the sale of farm products reached a peak of 1,381 million dollars, topping 1950 by 14 per cent and the previous record, in 1948, by 4 per cent. At the same time, cash expenses in 1951 rose nearly 12 per cent above 1950. The actual increase in net cash income over 1950 was only moderate.

Children Are Classified As Natural-Born Losers

FORT MADISON, Ia.—Some people are natural-born losers. And children are the worst of all.

According to calculations of the Sheaffer Pen Company, the average school child owns 8.8 pens during his school life, and loses 4.1 of them. The figures assume arithmetical proportions when you look at the nationwide statistics.

There are 18,559,000 children over 10 years of age in schools throughout the country. The pen company estimates that 14,847,000 of them will get a pen this year. Of that number, if the youngsters run true to form, over 10,000,000 will be lost.

That's a lot of pens down the drain (or wherever it is they go). And what are the pen people doing about it? Well, they are not just letting well-enough alone, like the mustache tycoon who made his fortune not by the amount of mustache people ate, but by the amount they left on their plates.

Instead, Sheaffer has put a new and stronger clip on its pens and pencils. The new clip has a self-adjusting interlocking which main-

Abraham Lincoln Forced To Sit Sideways in Pew

Abraham Lincoln had to sit sideways in church pews to make the most of the space, it is said, and long-legended to sit facing the preacher. This was revealed by the minister of Washington's New York Avenue Presbyterian church, Lincoln's capital city worshiping place.

Dr. George M. Docherty, now minister of the church, said that by all church accounts Lincoln enjoyed stretching his legs out into the aisle, and his end position had decided the matter.

One Sunday a bedraggled knicker wader wandered down the aisle, looking for a seat. The president spotted him. Instantly out shot a long arm, and Lincoln whispered:

"Come right in beside me, brother, there's plenty of room."

The humorist noted the duration of the sitting, and the president's sitting was a comedy.

Lincoln is one of several un-orthodox anecdotes which the church has collected for the anniversary of the birth of the great emancipator.

Lincoln was a great admirer and a close friend of the Rev. Phineas D. Gurley, the pastor of the New York Avenue church. He was quoted as saying:

"I like Dr. Gurley. He don't prob'ly get me through the week, and when I go to church I like to hear the gospel."

While Lincoln was a fairly regular attendant at the downtown Presbyterian church, where he rented a regular pew for a year, his two sons, Willie and Tad, were not.

Returning from church one Sunday morning, the president and make that his two sons had attended services at the Fourth Presbyterian church. He looked at them sadly, and asked why.

Well, his two sons chorused, they had more fun at the Fourth. They enjoyed seeing the "secessionists" get up, slam the doors of their pews, and march out to the minister prayed for the president of the United States.

Fanny was engaged to a West Point cadet, class of 1861, named Anthony Elderskin, originally of Potsdam, N.Y. Lincoln happened to be talking to her father after the fall of Fort Sumter, and, incidentally, about her son.

Gurley told the president that his daughter's fiancé was even then on his way to the front lines. He told Lincoln, too, of his doubts about allowing his daughter to marry a combat soldier.

Lincoln, knowing that Fanny's heart was set on the marriage, sat down and wrote his dispatch to the commanding officer of young Elderskin's detachment.

"Three days furlough for Elderskin. Come to Washington on the day he is married."

The boy came, and the bride's father performed the ceremony. Lincoln stood in the receiving line, next to the bride, and gave her one of his homely bits of wisdom.

"Have a home of your own," the president said. "If it's only one room, with a stove in one corner, and a bed in the other, have a home of your own."

"A man needs a wife as much as he needs a horse," he said, and he needs her more. Stay with your husband when you can.

"Don't let a third party interfere between you two; stay by yourselves. Never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you."

Practical Tests Needed To Insure Correct Vision

The idea that 20/20 vision is perfect is a fallacy, according to the American Optometric Association. Hundreds of thousands of school children pass 20/20 test, yet fail in their school work this year because their vision is inadequate, the association said in emphasizing the importance of more comprehensive school vision tests.

"Most school work requires seeing within arm's length, and the 20/20 standard applies only to vision at 20 feet," stated the association. "Furthermore, the 20/20 test does not take into account the many visual skills required to read, write, and perform most other school tasks. A child may be cross-eyed, color-blind, and have many other visual problems, and still pass the 20/20 test."

The 20/20 standard is an arbitrary one adopted by Herman Snellen who was born in 1854. When you read the letters he said you should be able to at 20 feet, you have 20/20 vision. If you can read only the larger letters that he said you should see at 30 feet, you have 20/30 vision, and so on.

"The 20/20 standard is neither perfect nor average, and the Snellen test is misleading if it is not accompanied by other tests that measure more important requirements for practical seeing," the association said.

Tomato Plant Has Substance Found In Sex Hormones

WASHINGTON—The United States department of agriculture has announced that the common tomato plant contains substances that are very valuable in medical treatment. These substances are the material from which laboratories make sex hormones.

Very involved chemical research has discovered, according to the department of agriculture, that scientists can extract a new alkaloid from tomato stems. This new alkaloid is called "crystalline tomatidine" by the scientists.

The department said the value of the new discovery lies in the fact that heretofore only three sources were available for the preparation of these drugs—animal nerve tissues, soybeans and Mexican yams.

The department said tomatidine might even be converted into cortisone, a new drug being used for relief of arthritic pains. However, there are chemical difficulties to such conversion.

Rosson Offers To Buy Jap Makers, Moulds, Dies

TOKYO — The Rosson Co., manufacturer of cigarette lighters, has offered Japanese imitators $10,000 to turn over all their moulds and dies and stop using the American firm's models.

That was reported by the Japanese Lighter Manufacturers Association. It said the negotiations have been going on for some time with no end in sight.

The Nippon Times said the talks are being handled for Rosson by Alexander Harris, a company executive now on a short trip to Hong Kong. His problem is complicated by the fact that several other Japanese manufacturers associations are involved.

The association said Rosson insisted the $10,000 is the company's final offer no matter how many Japanese groups are concerned. Japanese manufacturers of small articles such as cameras, binoculars and fountain pens always have imitated foreign designs.

2. WHAT IS A GROUP PRACTICE?
3 WHEN SHOULD CHILDREN BE GIVEN PREVENTIVE INJECTIONS?
Answer to Question No. 1:
Most skin moles are harmless birthmarks. If, however, any mole or wart shows change in size or color, consult your doctor. He will probably advise removal and examination of the tissue to learn if cancer is present. Moles, if located where clothing irritates them, should be removed as a precaution.
Answer to Question No. 2:
Modern medicine is a vast and complex science. It is impossible for any one doctor to know everything about all the different branches. Different specialists may work together as a team or group so that any one patient may benefit from their combined knowledge and special skills. Some groups include members of allied professions such as dentists and physical therapists.
Answer to Question No. 3:
Every infant should be vaccinated against smallpox and given inoculation against diphtheria and whooping cough. Repeat before entering school. Children should also be immunized against tetanus upon entering school, when play may result in the puncture-type wounds that could become tetanus infected.

HOMEMAKER CLUBS
CEDAR CREEK
The Cedar Creek Homemakers Club met at the home of Mrs. Phil Hilsenzel, March 20, with Mrs. George Howard acting as co-hostess. There were 19 members and three visitors present. An extra work day was decided upon, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Med. Call on Wednesday, March 25, at 10 a.m.

Our April meeting will be second Wednesday of the month instead of the regular third Wednesday, at the home of Mrs. Ballman. This change came about due to the spring vacation at school and several of our mothers would be unable to attend the meeting at the regular date.
